A Moral Footprint

Paul McCartney was outraged because his $168,000 eco friendly Lexus Limosine (a gift from the car manufacturer) was delivered by cargo jet from Japan instead of arriving by ship. Apparently the carbon footprint of the flight over would have negated the positive environmental impact of a hundred eco friendly limosines.

If anyone would want to proclaim any moral supriority for a $168,000 vehicle, they should sell it and donate the proceeds to the victims in Myanmar or China; and just shut up already about the carbon footprint.
