Generation Z

from Selena Zito, [Why the generation after millennials will vote Republican]

> “They are not as impressed with fame – celebrities, athletes, politicians – as are their predecessors, since fame in their lifetime has become rather easy to obtain with social media and reality TV,” Brauer added.
> Generation Z is diverse. They are only 55 percent white and will be the last majority-white generation in America. And they have the most positive outlook toward the nation’s growing diversity of any previous generation.
> Generation Z is a product of 9/11, global terrorism, school shootings, perpetual wars, the Great Recession, high unemployment and constant budget cuts. Because of all that, they are cautious, even fearful, of an uncertain world and economy. Security and safety are very important to them, as they have grown up in such an unstable society.
> They are distrustful of “big” employers because they’ve seen good people, who did all the right things, get laid off from longstanding jobs and careers. They are cautious with finances, always looking for the best deals and the best value.

Selena Zito’s analytic creds are rising with me. Interesting trend in youth voting… and they like Trump.
